

ND moves

active transportation & transit plan

➔ What is ND Moves?

ND Moves is a first-of-its kind statewide plan for active and public transportation in North Dakota.

The ND Moves plan will serve as a guide and a resource for accommodating active and public transportation throughout the state over the next 20 years. It will also be an actionable investment strategy for the North Dakota Department of Transportation (NDDOT) to appropriately allocate resources to integrate walking, bicycling, and transit into transportation systems.

📄 What will the plan include?

The outcome of this process is a plan that communicates:

What we're aiming for - vision, goals, and objectives

What we need - funding and resource allocation

Where we are/where we're going - assessment of existing conditions and projected trends

How we'll do it - guide for implementation and measuring success

What we'll do - network, policy, and program recommendations for active transportation and transit

How we got there - summary of the plan development process, including public engagement

Stay connected!

NDDOT will be engaging with residents and stakeholders across the state from now through the summer of 2018 as ND Moves is developed. Check out the project website or follow NDDOT on social media to get the latest information on in-person and online activities.
